

Web Modules Provide Sensitive Information to New Mothers

ORLANDO, FL (1/13/09)

Candace Crowe Design has responded to a popular request by plastic surgeons. The new Mommy Makeover module of webRevenez delivers valuable, easy-to-understand information to new mothers in the comfort and privacy of their own homes.

“Each year we strive to improve, make updates to, and create additional modules for webRevenez,” says Candace Crowe, the President of Candace Crowe Design. Crowe travels extensively to conferences to meet with plastic surgeons and listen to their needs. The new Mommy Makeover module has been produced in response to several requests.

By imbedding the Mommy Makeover module into a website, a doctor can introduce prospective patients to several procedures at once. Information about breast augmentation, tummy tuck, breast reduction, breast lift, mini tummy tuck, and liposuction are available in this one module. The goal is to discuss sensitive issues surrounding post-pregnancy body changes, and give the new mother confidence to approach a surgeon about her needs.

webRevenez gives website visitors fast access to explanations of surgical procedures and treatments. Doctors simply choose the modules they want and add the radio buttons to their sites. The modules are simple to incorporate into a new or existing website and can be live on the Internet in less than one hour!

Mommy Makeover is the latest in the collection of more than 20 webRevenez modules from Candace Crowe Design. Practical and informative, the stylish line of educational tools tastefully explains plastic surgery procedures to patients. As a result, patients are more confident and better informed, and doctors have more time to dedicate to surgery.
